Artist Legal Information Services (ALIS)

ALIS will provide free legal information, workshops, and library resources to struggling artists and writers. Our organization's goal is to help artists, actors, musicians, dancers, writers, and filmmakers understand their legal problems and to provide a framework for navigating these obstacles. Some examples of potential areas of assistance include contracts, defamation, copyright, trademarks & royalties, or other payments.

ALIS is still in the development stage and, at the moment, they are working on workshops to offer the public. In the future, they aim to provide a strong database of reference materials as well as offer legal information clinics for artists to make appointments to speak with lawyers in person.

Montreal Artists' Legal Clinic (CJAM)

CJAM's legal information nights give artists the opportunity to discuss their legal issues with a student-at-law for approximately 30 minutes. The volunteer will then research the artist's issue and get back to the artist with relevant legal information, which will be approved by one of CJAM's coordinators (usually within 10 business days).

If you're interested in an appointment, or if you have any questions, please send an email with your name, contact information and preferred language of consultation to rsvp@cjam.info. Please note that space is limited so register early!
